PERSPECTIVE

From : Ogbemi Ekwejunor-Etchie on Jun 02, 2025

Here's something I think you do really well and hope you keep doing:

As I've onboarded into MSR you've serviced as an open resource as I've navigated my new charter. You've been a great embodiment of the One Microsoft culture making sure self available to drive progress in my area. Please continue representing ONE Microsoft!

Here's a suggestion for how you could leverage this strength further:

Here's something I think you do really well and hope you keep doing:

You did a fantastic job leading both proposals for our Project Green workshops. I really appreciated how you proactively brought in collaborators, energized the process, and ensured we met our deadlines. In the second proposal, where I was more involved, I especially valued your openness to different perspectives—even when they challenged your initial ideas. You also created space for others to take initiative and ownership, which fostered a collaborative environment where everyone could contribute, experiment, and iterate. That leadership helped make the workshop a real success

Here's a suggestion for how you could leverage this strength further:

Given the number of co-organizers involved, it was understandable that coordination was a bit challenging at the start. I really appreciate how you took ownership to submit the first version of the proposal by the deadline. With a bit more upfront planning, I think your leadership could shine even more—helping ensure smooth communication and clarity for everyone involved.

Here's something I think you do really well and hope you keep doing:

Lekan has been a very helpful mentor over the past year. He has made a significant effort to connect me with various people that are relevant to my research, and in particular to help me make connections in the Montreal ML research community that will be very helpful in my new role at Mila. I have also enjoyed our discussions over the past year and have appreciated hearing Lekan's perspective on research at MSR and the future of ML/robotics.

Outlook

Thank you for participating in the ASME ATS/ES TC Networking Sessions

To Shobhit Gupta <shobhit.2.gupta@gm.com>; Ruiting Wang <rtwang@berkeley.edu>; Jackson Fogelquist <jbfogelquist@ucdavis.edu>

Hi all,

I hope you all had a nice time in Denver at ACC! I would like to extend our thanks for being a part of our student networking special session. Much of the success of this event is due to all of your participation, and it would not be possible without you. Talking to some of the students afterwards, they seemed to really enjoy the session and found it helpful, so hopefully you all did as well.

This is the second time our technical committees have worked together on an event of this kind, and we hope to hold more of these sessions at future conferences. If you have any comments on what went well or what we could improve on, please let us know, we would really value your feedback.

On behalf of the ASME Automotive and Transportation Systems Technical Committee and the ASME Energy Systems Technical Committee, thank you once again!
